Teacher splits the class in half to form two groups (Group 1 and Group 2). 2. Teacher says a word secretly to Group 1, e.g. car, kookaburra, wind, chicken, cat, tree, helicopter. 3. All students in Group 1 are to communicate and act out the word at the same time. 4. Group 2 attempts to guess the word that Group 1 is acting out. 5. Teacher chooses a different word and secretly tells it to Group 2, e.g. car, kookaburra, wind, chicken, cat, tree, helicopter. 6. Group 2 now takes a turn in acting out the word they were given as Group 1 attempts to guess the word. Example of ways students can act out/communicate in the game: teacher says “car”. Students can: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - act out driving a car - make engine or horn sounds - sign the Auslan sign for ‘car’ - point to a car - say the word in a language other than English. LEARNING Class Activity: Values and Identity <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Create a stage for the performance. Either place a sheet or towel between two chairs, or a desk flipped over on its side (make it easily accessible for all students to use by providing enough space for students to move around).

for a variety of purposes on familiar topics for known readers and viewers	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 3. Teacher puts students into groups of 3. 4. Each student is to base their puppet character on themselves and their personal values. 5. Students in their groups are to create a puppetry performance where they share a bit about themselves, listen to one another and start new friendships. 6. Students look at the Puppet Show Structure (Basic instructions) and fill in the Script for a Puppet Show. 7. Students have 10-15 minutes to practice their performance. 8. Groups take it in turns to perform their puppet show in front of the class. Class Discussion (after all groups have performed): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Did you learn something new about yourself? - What have you learnt about your classmates? - Did this activity help clarify some of your own values? ASSESSMENT No formal assessment has been provided for this activity.
Adaptations, Considerations and/or Adjustments Note: Think about how this lesson may affect students in your class and make any of these adaptations that you feel necessary.	Physical: Before performances begin, raise a sheet or board to the appropriate height to assist the student to perform their puppet show. The stage may need to be wider for wheelchair access and accessible (e.g. ramp if there are stairs). Students may have a classmate hold their puppet for them while they do the voices for performance if they have mobility difficulties. Vision: Students may need some details explained to them, e.g. types of puppets used, how to hold and move puppets for show. Use a tag on the back of the puppet board or sheet for the student to feel where to hold the puppet or how far to move the puppet along. Incorporate narration and get students to give story and character overviews at the beginning of the performance. Teacher can fill in any visual details for the student while other puppet shows are being performed. Provide Optical magnifiers or large font visuals for Values list. Hearing: Use sound devices if available. Ensure any background noise is minimised. Repeat any questions the class has asked before answering. A helper can sign or a student can be given Basic Written Instructions, Basic Language support or a more detailed version of Language support for the activity. Provide students with a written storyline/dialogue script for each group performance or each group can give a brief verbal or written overview of classmate’s performances before they begin. Sensory: Provide different options for material used, e.g. if a student has a dislike for paddle pop sticks, give the option of using cardboard or a plastic ruler. Have a quiet area in which students can plan their performance.

	Non-verbal: Incorporate the student’s own form of communication into the performance or have the students group do the verbal parts while the student holds up the puppet. Place the student in a good position for viewing when other students are performing. Have a student or teacher explain the puppet show that is taking place. EAL/D: Ensure students understand the task by using Basic Written Instructions and visuals to demonstrate. Students can perform in their first language if preferred. Other: Some students may benefit from having a mirror set up for them to see their puppet while performing. Behaviour may change due to task avoidance in this activity if a student is uncomfortable being up in front of the class. Give student a smaller or different goal if necessary, e.g. have the student be the person who sets up the stage, introduces each performance, does the sound effects, or have student act out one line instead of the whole performance. The student may also perform to one other student or the teacher. Provide an opportunity for students to choose their own puppet based on the student’s interests (Additional Puppet Options).
